What is the GED test?

The General Education Development test (GED) is a high school equivalency exam that is offered in the United States and Canada. The GED test is designed to assess the academic skills of adults who have not completed high school. If you pass the GED test, you will earn a high school equivalency diploma that is recognized by most colleges and universities.

What are the benefits of taking the GED test?

- Earn a high school equivalency diploma
- Qualify for college or vocational training
- Get a better job or promotion
- Increase your earning potential
- Improve your career prospects

What is the GED test like?

The GED test is a computer-based exam that is divided into four subject areas: Reasoning Through Language Arts, Mathematical Reasoning, Science, and Social Studies. Each subject area test is timed, and you will have a total of 7 hours and 30 minutes to complete the entire test.

The Reasoning Through Language Arts test measures your reading comprehension, grammar, and writing skills. The Mathematical Reasoning test measures your math skills, including algebra, geometry, and statistics. The Science test measures your knowledge of science, including biology, chemistry, and physics. The Social Studies test measures your knowledge of history, civics, and economics.

How do I prepare for the GED test?

The best way to prepare for the GED test is to take a practice test and identify your strengths and weaknesses. Once you know what areas you need to improve, you can focus your studies accordingly.

There are many resources available to help you prepare for the GED test, including:

- The GED website: www.ged.com
