This Homeschool Planning Guide For The Unorganized Mom is designed to help you get your homeschool organized and running smoothly. We'll cover everything from curriculum selection to daily schedules and routines, and we'll provide you with tips and resources to help you stay on track.

Curriculum Selection

The first step in homeschool planning is curriculum selection. This can be a daunting task, but it's important to take your time and choose a curriculum that is a good fit for your child's learning style and needs.

There are many different types of homeschool curricula available, so it's important to do your research and find one that is a good fit for you and your family. Some popular homeschool curricula include:

- Traditional textbooks
- Online curricula
- Unit studies
- Charlotte Mason curricula
- Montessori curricula

Once you've chosen a curriculum, it's important to create a lesson plan that will help you stay on track. A lesson plan will help you organize your materials, plan your activities, and track your child's progress.

Daily Schedules and Routines

Once you have a curriculum in place, it's important to create a daily schedule and routine for your homeschool. This will help you stay organized and on track, and it will also provide your child with a sense of structure and predictability.

Your daily schedule should include time for all of the following activities:

- Core subjects (math, reading, writing, science, and history)

- Electives (art, music, foreign language, etc.)
- Physical activity
- Free play
- Breaks

It's important to be flexible with your daily schedule, but it's also important to be consistent. Try to stick to your schedule as much as possible, and adjust it as needed.

Tips for Staying Organized

Here are a few tips for staying organized as a homeschooling mom:

- Create a dedicated homeschool space.
- Keep your materials organized.
- Use a planner or calendar to track your appointments and activities.
- Set priorities and stick to them.
- Delegate tasks to your children.
- Don't be afraid to ask for help.

Homeschooling can be a challenging but rewarding experience. By following the tips in this guide, you can get your homeschool organized and running smoothly, and you can create a homeschool that is both effective and enjoyable.
